Dear Legislators,

I am a concerned parent who is asking for you to support GMO labeling in Connecticut. As a mother and consumer, I ask that you respect my right to know what is in the food I am buying for my children. I believe this labeling should be clear and easy to understand. This is very important to me because I believe it is my responsibility to look out for the best interest of my children and their health. I work tirelessly every day to raise responsible children who are healthy and productive members of our society and as a cancer survivor myself, food and nutrition is major contributor is helping to grow a strong mind and body. It is altogether wrong to think there is a component of food we buy for nourishment that is not being disclosed to the consumer for reasons of political gain. We, as Americans, have a right to know as consumers what we are buying. We shouldn't be on a "need to know" basis when it comes to our food. Please, do not delay in helping the people of Connecticut become fully informed about the ingredients that are in the food they buy.

Respectfully yours,

Jennifer Pace
